The Things She Whispers to Me, is a collection of poems about your existence beyond this moment, beyond this thought. Meant to fill and empty you. It's about her becoming a child once more, it's about her being found, being freed. Composed of four parts, the compilation evolves from a state of self-destruction, to taking flight. Releasing oneself through understanding. Pursuing more and discovering what has always been there. It is about you being exposed, facing yourself, your fears, your doubt. It's not about being guilty, but forgiven. Written to express that only once you have broken entirely, are you truly capable of being whole.

The four parts of the series can be enjoyed together in, The Things She Whispers to Me, or experienced separately.

Part I The Flower That Has Fallen, describes a state of self-destruction.

Part II Release Her, dissects time and space, your body and nakedness. It is about being bare and exposed. Only through understanding and a departure from fear, may you be freed from gravity and fly.

Part III The Pursuit, is concerned with more, as we always are. To learn what is possible and to understand what is necessary.

Part IV To Awaken, is about her arrival. It's about cultivating her in this world and enjoying her entirely.
